

Standards of Accreditation for Residency Programs in Internal Medicine

The Standards of Accreditation for Residency Programs in Internal Medicine are a national set of standards maintained by the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada (Royal College) for the evaluation and accreditation of residency programs in the discipline. The standards are designed to uphold the quality of residency education provided across Canada and to ensure residency programs adequately prepare residents to meet the health care needs of their patient population(s) during and upon completion of training.

This document integrates Royal College discipline-specific expectations with the CanERA General Standards of Accreditation for Residency Programs, which are maintained conjointly by the Royal College, College of Family Physicians of Canada (CFPC), and Collège des médecins du Québec (CMQ) and apply to all accredited programs across all disciplines. In certain instances, modifications may have been made to a general indicator to address a discipline-specific need. These modified indicators are identified as such and take precedence over the general indicator.

The standards are intended to be read in conjunction with the discipline-specific suite of documents that address the national standards for training.
